Distracted Driving in Texas: Statistics, Evidence, and What to Do After a Crash

Distracted driving can have serious consequences for everyone on the road. This blog explains common distractions and what steps to take if a distracted driver causes an accident.

- Stay focused: Avoid texting, eating, or adjusting navigation while driving.
- Understand the risks: Texting takes your eyes, hands, and attention away from the road.
- After a crash: Seek medical attention, contact law enforcement, and gather evidence when safe.
- Protect your claim: Phone records and camera footage may help show what happened.

If you or a loved one is injured by a distracted driver, Herrman & Herrman is here to help you understand your legal options and take the next steps.

What Not to Say After a Car Accident: 7 Mistakes That Could Hurt Your Claim

A car accident can leave you shaken and unsure of what to do next. This blog explains how your words can affect your claim and what to avoid saying after a crash.

- Avoid admitting fault: Stick to the facts and let investigators determine responsibility.
- Don't dismiss injuries: Some symptoms appear later, so seek medical attention.
- Don't promise payment: Understand the damage and your options before agreeing to cover expenses.
- Avoid guessing: Share accurate information and take time to understand your options before making decisions.

Herrman & Herrman is here to help you understand your legal options and navigate the next steps after an accident.
